Singkawang city has a sense of pride in its Chinese cultural heritage. One of which exhibits the Tatung mystical attraction; a spectacular performance within Singkawang's Spring Festival, or as Indonesians call it, Cap Go Meh. This Chinese culture-based tourism event is one of the mainstays in bringing foreign tourists to West Kalimantan. In 2017, as many as 26 ambassadors from various countries came to see this festival. This event is held regularly every year, precisely on the fifteenth day after the Lunar New Year celebration. Hundreds of Tatung do a parade around the city while performing extreme attractions, accompanied by a bunch of drum beats to ward off evil spirits. Annually, the Singkawang Cap Go Meh Festival is centered in Singkawang City, West Kalimantan.
