The eruption of Mt. Tambora is the biggest recorded eruption in the world, eliminating tens of thousands of lives and civilization itself. Scientists call it “a year without a summer”. The event shook mankind, while also inspired numerous renowned literary arts and legendary movies. Having a theme of “Tambora Greets the World”, the Tambora Festival was first held in 2015 to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the 1815 Mt. Tambora eruption. Drawing thousands from around the world, this event takes place on the Ngoro Canga Savanna to expose the very culture of Tambora, as well as to showcase various competitive games like an extreme marathon.
